1900 · As the 20th century begins, the United States has a $46 million surplus in its Treasury and forty-five stars on its flag. Quartets sing in barber shops on Saturday nights, where a haircut costs just two bits (25¢), and home refrigeration still depends on daily visits from the ice man. Columbia Records, manufacturer of the Gramophone cylinder-machine, receives the Grand Prize at the Paris Exposition, and the Philadelphia Orchestra is organized:
